While enrollment is on a first-come, first-served basis, the school director makes every effort to structure a group of students from a variety of ages.

Students enrolled in these preschools participate in a wide variety of activities designed to meet their special interests and needs in a safe and healthy environment. Activities are planned to encourage each student's growth in four areas of development: intellectual, emotional, physical, and social.

The preschool portion of the vocational program runs during the fall and spring semesters of the district's academic year. Preschool students attend three mornings per week.
